Acquisition aims to provide broader access to comprehensive testing and laboratory services for patients and physicians in North Mississippi

BURLINGTON, N.C. (April 21, 2025) – Labcorp (NYSE: LH), a global leader of innovative and comprehensive laboratory services, and North Mississippi Health Services announced today that Labcorp has completed its acquisition of North Mississippi Health Services' ambulatory outreach laboratory business and become a referral laboratory for its seven hospitals and clinic laboratories.

Through this acquisition, North Mississippi Health Services' patients and providers will have continuity of high-quality laboratory services and access to Labcorp's leading clinical laboratory services, robust data and digital tools. In addition, Labcorp will open three new patient service centers in Tupelo, West Point and Amory by mid-year to increase availability of laboratory services in North Mississippi.

"Labcorp is committed to continuing the longstanding tradition of high-quality laboratory and healthcare services that North Mississippi Health Services' patients have come to expect and deserve while increasing access to these important services – especially for those living in rural communities," said Lenny Monsour, senior vice president of Labcorp's Southeast Division. "This acquisition allows us to leverage the strengths of both organizations to positively impact healthcare for communities in North Mississippi."

"North Mississippi Health Services will continue to operate laboratories in each of our hospitals and clinics with this partnership helping to address key pieces of our strategy including improving access, evolving how we 'do the work' and creating alternative revenue sources," said Shane Spees, NMHS president and CEO.

Both organizations have been working together to implement a smooth transition focused on maintaining continuity of services for patients, hospitals, physicians and clients, while providing direct access to the additional capabilities of Labcorp.

This acquisition follows other strategic agreements and relationships that Labcorp has established with a range of local and regional health systems that have enhanced services for patients and providers.
