

LabCorp & Allscripts Expand Relationship to Provide Chart-Based Lab Order Entry and Results Solution

November 22, 2004

FirstChart(TM) Allows Clients to Customize Connectivity Technology to Their

Practices

BURLINGTON, N.C., Nov. 22 /PRNewswire-FirstCall/ -- Laboratory Corporation of America(R) Holdings (LabCorp(R)) (NYSE: LH) today announced the availability of an innovative new chart-based laboratory order entry and results delivery system called FirstChart(TM). The FirstChart(TM) product was developed in collaboration with one of LabCorp's strategic connectivity partners, Allscripts Healthcare Solutions (Nasdaq: MDRX), to help accelerate electronic medical record adoption by providing physician clients with a state-of-the-art connectivity solution that can be customized for their specific practices.

The FirstChart(TM) product integrates LabCorp's unique and comprehensive laboratory processing abilities with Allscripts electronic medical record (EMR) technology, patient chart viewing and enhanced workflow capabilities. FirstChart(TM) is designed to help LabCorp customers migrate toward the use of electronic medical record and other technology workflow solutions, such as e-prescribing and document imaging.

Also, as part of LabCorp's physician-focused connectivity strategy, the company has hired a team of experienced healthcare technology consultants to work daily with its national sales team to resolve the complex technology and connectivity issues often faced by physician offices.

"We are very excited about our expanded relationship with Allscripts Healthcare Solutions, as well as our joint involvement in the national movement to promote the use of electronic health records," said Bill Haas, LabCorp's executive vice president of sales and marketing. "LabCorp has an adaptable connectivity strategy that allows us to connect with our clients existing systems while maintaining the ability to accommodate future system updates. We recognize that clients need the ability to choose the systems that best meet their needs. By continuing to build relationships with the top healthcare technology vendors, we ensure LabCorp physician clients not only have access to the best technology, they also have choice."

"We are pleased that LabCorp will be including our software in its FirstChart(TM) solution. As one of the nation's leading laboratory service providers, LabCorp's deployment of our software will help make Allscripts ubiquitous in physician practices," commented Glen Tullman, chairman and chief executive officer of Allscripts. "This new initiative reinforces LabCorp's healthcare IT leadership by helping physicians take important steps on the road toward the adoption of a complete electronic medical record."
